More About N. Waterman

found a few that really should be added to the Waterman article to make it more complete. I also researched the August 31, 1858 patent - more about that later.

One way immediately differentiating Waterman pans from Waterman style pans manufactured by the most prominent companies (Griswold, Wagner, Favorite) is the straight style of the handles, versus the arc or curved style of the common Waterman and R & E Mfg. pieces.

This is evident with the No. 2 Griswold muffin pan on the cover of this issue. When this pan is turned over [fig. 2] you notice the No. 2 and the pattern number. Most Griswold No. 2s are NOT marked with a pattern number. Also the bottom of the Did Favorite mark all of their pieces? Who knows? Is it handles of this example are rolled or curved. I believe Griswold? I don't believe so. this is the earliest version. Later examples had flat handles, same size as the "N." This is also not consistent with Griswold markings. However, the presence of the pattern number identifies it as Griswold.

The number 6 muffin pan [fig. 3] has straight handles and is marked No. 6. Notice the position of the markings [fig. 4]; the "NO" and "6" are very widely spaced. Also there is no period after the "NO"- the Griswold No. 2 has a period after "NO." But the handles are straight on the Number 6, so isn't that Griswold?

Look at the Favorite Piqua No. 1 [fig. 5] and [fig. 6]. Look at the configuration of the marking on the handle. Now after comparing these two, is the number 6 muffin pan [fig. 3] Favorite? Did Favorite even make a number six?

From The Editor

It hardly seems possible we are coming to the end of another volume of Kettles 'n Cookware, but here we are at issue number six - the last of Volume Nine. The next issue will be quite a milestone - the tenth year! The average tenure for a privately published newsletter is three years. Think about it; Albertson's "Collectors Newsletter" lasted about two years, "Cast Iron Cookware News," the excellent newsletter by Steve Stephens endured three years although he did publish another issue a year later; and Linda Franklin's "Kitchen Collectibles News" about the same time span. You, the readers and subscribers, with your support and generous input, and sharing of knowledge have made KnC work; you are the continuing success.

For that, I thank you!

I never did get to the article about Griswold
Stoves (hot plates) so I guess I will have to do that in Volume Ten. I also plan to do an article about the Boring (?)
French Roll pan. Actually I plan on showing you that they aren't as boring as you might believe. Actually they are quite interesting. I have also been promised an article about the Griswold pattern numbers, why and how they were assigned. That should be a great one - certainly thought provoking. Also, I am open to your suggestions for articles you would like to see. Let me know.

There are a couple of short topics I want to try. One is to introduce again the question: What is the most unusual use you have seen for Griswold or other cast iron cookware pieces? Also, the question, What got you started collecting cast iron? I am sure many of you have an interesting tale to tell. I will kick it off in the next issue.

I have been working on the index for all the issues of KnC. It has been quite a project. I am not sure at the time of this writing if it will be done for inclusion in this issue of KnC or if I will have to do a separate mailing. Either way, you will have it by the end of the year! Actually I will be glad to have one for myself. I find myself looking through old issues in search of information which I know is in there somewhere. The index will also help me. Although it has been quite a project, it has been interesting and fun sifting through past issues. I am toying with the idea of using some old material to create a 10th anniversary issue, perhaps the first issue of Volume Ten. We have really covered the gamut these past nine years material wise and personality wise. It sure is interesting!

I had such a response to the subject "How do you display your collection," that I am going to do another feature. Please submit your clear photos of your display(s). I would like to run it in issue number 2.

On another note - We have had an unexpected three week delay in the delivery of the new book. There was some problem with the film when they shot it for publication which had to be redone.

It is always something. We woke up to about four inches of snow yesterday morning (Nov. 15th) and it hasn't melted. I guess it is time to put away the lawn mower and fire up the snow blower. The snow sure helps push us into the Christmas spirit. Many of our neighbors beginning to put up their Christmas decorations and lights. I just can't get into that spirit until after Thanksgiving.

My wife Catherine and I want to wish all of you a very Happy Holiday Season and in the new year, may you find that coveted piece, and all your iron shine brightly.

The Wagner Ware No. 1 [fig. 7] is interesting because it has a solid frame - no cut-outs. The solid frame Wagners are much more uncommon than the open frame. Both are common with the Waterman No. 1 style.

The Sheppard hardware No. 7 [fig. 8] follows suit. This pan is interesting with the cutouts for a stove lid lifter. I have only seen two other S heppard Hardware muffin pans; a

No. 10 Popover style and a No. 12 which is similar to the Griswold No. 14 (p/n 952) with rectangular cups, but has a handle on one end to accommodate a stove lid lifter.

The next two pieces are Waterman style No. 5s, one with almost a clover leaf cut-out on each end [fig. 9], and one with round holes [fig. 10]. The piece with the round holes is an eighth of an inch wider and an eighth inch longer. Neither are marked. Consequently, I have no idea of their maker. Also note the fairly crude gate marks.

In my previous Waterman article, I showed a patent drawing of August 17, 1858 for the original Waterman pan. I also mentioned discovering a Waterman patent date of August 31, 1858 on the oval, round, and square pans. I researched this date at the Buffalo library which now has all patents on CDs. The drawings for this patent however are missing; the U.S. Patent office doesn't have them. They have apparently been lost or destroyed. This patent, Design Patent 1046, states:

"One of said forms is represented as of an elliptical shape and having the word "faith" raised in relief within it, and the letters composing the same in reverse, so when bread or dough may be baked in said pan, the word "faith" shall be stamped thereon.

The next pan is of an elongated shape and has the word "hope" in raised letters and in reverse applied to its bottom.

The other pan is of a circular shape, and has the word "love" in relief and in reverse on its bottom. The form of each pan in other respects being as represented in the drawings - the three pans are joined together at their edges."

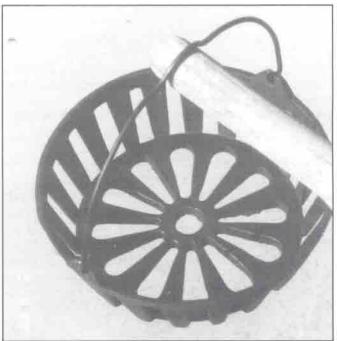

This patent establishes the next shapes in the sequence of Waterman Pans, the oval and round. It also clarifies the raised markings in the bottom of some.

However, there are two differences here as I see it: 1. The patent description indicates to me that the three different shapes would be attached. It doesn't appear that that ever happened, although wouldn't it be marvelous to find one; 2. The words Faith, Hope and Love would be raised. As you can see in the pan [fig. 11] the cups of this piece are all elliptical and the words are Peace. Plenty, and Prosperity. I have heard of the 3-section round panbeing marked with the original patent words of Faith, Hope and Love. I have not seen one however.

From experience, we have learned that many pieces manufactured are not identical to patent descriptions. This was illustrated in the KnC Vol. 3, No. 6 feature article. They do usually include the basic fundamentals of the patent however.

If anyone has any further information regarding the Waterman pieces, I would be most appreciative of any feedback and information you can add.

Chuck Wafford submitted this unusual piece.It measures 3 1/2" high and 10 3/4" in diameter. There are no markings. Does anyone have an idea of what this piece was intended for?

If you would like a special piece of yours featured in "Casting Call," simply submit a clear, sharp photo to KnC along with a brief description.

DEADLINE FOR NEXT ISSUE

January 15, 2001

Happy Holidays
to all!
David & Catherine Smith

Dave: I recently bought a #10 bailed round griddle with the raised ring in the middle of the bottom surrounding the logo (large slant with just the words ERIE underneath). The dealer suggested that it might have belonged as the top of the gas griddle. The photo you have in the current Book, just shows the top. It looks like the regular bailed round griddle. Was/is there a special top for this item? Even if this was the case, the gas griddles are sized 12 and 14, so I would assume that would be the size of the corresponding tops. I figured that if anyone would know, you would. Thanks for any insight you might have. – LG

LG: The only significant difference of the griddle that fits on the Vapor Griddle base is a protrusion in the center of the griddle which the fastening bolt threads into, to hold the griddle to the base. They also came in different markings. The one in 'The Book is actually a Diamond Logo. What a shame it doesn't show. Also, the No. 14 Vapor Griddle rests on the same base as the No. 12 and hangs over considerably, It is illustrated in the new Book. We also show, in the new Book, two Bail Handle Griddles with the center reinforcement ring. On page 34 of KnC, Volume 7, No. 3, there is a picture of a Bail Griddle with the round reinforcement ring. The ghost marks of several variations of markings are also evident. I would guess the ring on your griddle is just a standard reinforcement for the griddle. — ed.

Dear Dave: Enclosed are a couple of pictures of a "find" by a friend of mine who is more into kitchen collectibles than cast iron. It is, in case it isn't obvious, an ice scraper almost identical to the Griswold shown in "The Book." The measurement is the same and the only apparent difference is that lack of a hole on the top, and the hinge is slightly different. Also the Griswold is described as being tinned - this one, though most is gone, appears to be porcelainized on the inside. The maker was Logan & Strowbridge Iron Co. New Brighton PA - A No. 12. Who copied who? – BN

BN: Back then, everyone copied each other (as they still do today if they can get away with it). Patent rights were bypassed by a change in the hinge or some other working type of different construction. That style of Ice Shaver or Shredder is quite common, made by several different manufacturers. "300 Years of Kitchen Collectibles" by Franklin lists thirteen makers. Enterprise was probably the largest maker. — ed.

Dave: Do you know anything about a #8 skillet that has the #258 as the only identification and it is on the bottom of the skillet where most pattern #s are located? It also has an "8" on the top of the handle. – BM

Dave: I found a No. 27 Wheat Stick Pan, with cutouts, nicely cast, fully marked (although faded), in cast aluminum. There is no name of Griswold on the topside lower handle as with the other No. 27's. Any idea about the rarity of this pan? Many thanks. – DH

DH: Although there are a few aluminum muffin pans in the new book, the #27 is not one of them. I would say they are not very common, but typical of most aluminum pieces, they don't seen to be as desired by collectors as iron pieces. Consequently, I would value the aluminum #27 at about half of the iron one. — ed.

Hello Dave: I just bought a Griswold #2 skillet w/heat ring. On the back it has the slant logo with the 2 above it, and says Erie with the #703 under it. There is no PA USA on this piece. The thing I am wondering about is on the top of the handle there is no #2 where their #s generally are. Can you tell me anything on this piece? Thank you for your time. – SP

SP: The Book lists six different variations of number 2 skillets. Yours dates 1900-1910. The earlier pieces were not marked on the top of the handle. – ed.

Hi Dave: Just a quick question about who made and marked cast iron cookware with the SK mark. We have seen several on Ebay. We recently obtained a #8 skillet, with heat ring, and expansion cuts at the 9, 12, and 3 o'clock positions, and a D at the 6 o''clock position. Would appreciate any help you may forward to us. – EM EM: The breaks in the heat ring indicate your skillet was manufactured by the Lodge Mfg. Co. of South Pittsburg, Tennessee. There is a chapter about Lodge in the new book which should answer a lot of questions about Lodge. – ed.

Dave: I have a Chef Skillet with Griswold and Chef Skillet marked on the bottom. On top it looks like the pan was woven like a web with circles. I never saw one like it before. Do you know anything about it? – MT

MT: The Chef Skillet was produced in the 1960s. Although quite well polished, the inside frequently did show the grinding rings. I would guess the web appearance you refer to could have been caused by repeated cutting of whatever was cooked in it. This is frequently seen in skillets which people used for baking corn bread. Do you suppose this is a possibility with your skillet? – ed.

Repro Alert

Collector Howard Seifert found this very interesting piece. This Griswold No. 6 Handle Griddle is much heavier than an original should be. Also, the presence of a gate mark indicates this was not a Griswold production piece. What a great find this Diamond logo piece would be if it was legitimate. This was probably not done in any volume. It was most likely done by someone fooling around using an original piece as a pattern. Pieces like this are sometimes called "School Shop Projects" by some collectors.
